TO THE CLASS OF 1966

Happiness is a precious thing. Nothing is more foolish than to esteem it lightly, nothing more perverse than to pour it away. Happiness cannot be commanded, and it does not come at our bidding. For as you all know, or will soon learn, in spite of all our efforts it may vanish just when it is most treasured. Misfortune, bereavement, and loss are always imminent. Happiness, then, though precious, carries the sting of transiency: it may not last.

Your life here at school does not last either, and in a sense this condition has the transient qualities of happiness because you are going to leave and start again. The demands on your lives from now on will be greater, and you must brace yourselves to meet them. Therefore, should you be deprived of happiness because history happens to frustrate the goodness of life, the one thing that can keep you strong and steady is fidelity to duty. Duty, of course, is not a pleasing word to a great many in our modern world, but it must be an acceptable one. The class of 1966 will find happiness; but because we have lived closely with all of you, we should like to suggest for the ILIAD and for you a theme more lasting than happiness: DUTY.

RICHARD JOSEPH KEEFE

DEDICATION

To Mr. Richard Keefe,

who, with his enthusiasm for teaching and devotion to the students, has contributed much to the growth and progress of the school

Mr. Keefe received his bachelor's degree at Boston University and an art degree from the University of Iowa, where he taught French for two years. He also taught both French and English at the Cincinnati Country Day School.

For the past four years Mr. Keefe has been adviser to the Student Council and for two years supervised the publication of the Buzz Book. He is well remembered for his "capital punishments", such as putting gum in hair and reading the ninth grade girls' notes in eighth hour study hall. Mr. Keefe's portrayal of a Whitfield student in the teachers' "Christmas Skit" was a hilarious act which none of us will forget.

Therefore, it is to Mr. Richard J. Keefe, that we, the ILIAD staff, and the student body dedicate this yearbook for his faithfulness to both the school and the students.

ATHLETICS

This year the upper school boys' athletics class participated in a program of calisthenics and soccer practice each day. The coach, Mr. David Fraser, supervised the class during the drills and frequently participated in the drills and calisthenics.

The physical education grades for both the lower and upper school boys were based on a series of tests recognized by the President's Council on Physical Fitness. These tests were held each quarter with the help of Mr. George VonSchrader and Mr. Edward Steele.

During the spring and early summer baseball was substituted for soccer during the gym periods.

LOWER SCHOOL BOYS' ATHLETICS

Clark, C. Starwalt, C. Stone, M. Kratz, E. Davis, B. Brereton, G. Wiegand, C. Petrus. THIRD ROW: C. Van Dyke, P. Cady, B. Duke, J. Lipscomb, L. Roos, G. Green, E. Engler, D. Glick, J. Dozier, J. Hunter.

The lower school athletic program was much the same as that of the upper school. The boys participated in soccer practice and calisthenics on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Under the critical eyes of Mr. Fraser, the lower school boys learned much about soccer, and improved their game in extra periods with Mr. Von Schrader.

These boys show great potential for the teams in coming years.

ORGANIZATIONS

STUDENT COUNCIL

This year the Student Council was ably led by Curt Engler, president, assisted by Cathy Leschen, secretary-treasurer. Other members of the council were Randa Sale, senior, Henry Giese, junior, Jack Freiheit, sophomore, Dorothy Nemec, freshman, Brian Brereton and Patty Ferer, eighth grade; and Shelley Rounce, seventh grade. Mr. Keefe served as adviser for his third consecutive year.

The council was responsible for such programs as the Get-Acquainted Day for the new students and the assignment of parking spaces for students, the sale of book covers, pencils, brieffolios, and the publication of the Buzz Book. In addition, Curt Engler performed as Master of Ceremonies for the Christmas program.

It was a most active and rewarding year for the Student Council.

SOCIAL COUNCIL

FROM LEFT: P. Candy, M. Kratz, R. Garrett, C. Forman, C. Green, C. Van Dyke.

The Social Council is in its second year of operation at Whitfield. The Council's six members are Charles Van Dyke, representing the seventh grade; Philip Cady, the eighth; Mike Kratz, the ninth; Bob Garrett, the tenth; and Connie Green, the eleventh. Claudia Forman, representing the twelfth grade, was elected president.

The main objectives of the organization are to create more social affairs and to stimulate more school spirit. The council's main social event of the year was the Junior-Senior prom, held at Bath & Tennis Country Club. The proceeds from parties and a large donation from the Mothers' Council increased the funds for the prom. The funds obtained by parking cars for the National Open Golf Tournament at Bellerive Country Club also added to the prom finances.

YEARBOOK STAFF

LEFT TO RIGHT: M. Kahle, S. Neun, C. Forman, B. Duhme, R. Sale, T. Hagnauer, A. Gazzoli, Miss Kaufman, C. Green, P. Moulton, M. Lewis, C. Engler, E. Green.

Although most of the meetings began as gossip sessions because of the majority of girls on the staff, a glance at the production schedule brought more work and less talk.

Angela Gazzoli, our editor, with an occasional nudge from Miss Kaufman, our adviser, kept us moving toward that seemingly unimaginable goal--completion. Connie Green served as assistant editor; Pam Moulton, layout editor, Claudia Forman, literary editor, Benton Duhme, art editor, and Matt Van Dyke, sports editor. Our thanks go to Curt Engler, photography editor, for all his excellent photographs. Randa Sale served as advertising manager with Mike Lewis as a very conscientious assistant. Louise Nemec, business manager, succeeded in juggling the books and keeping us out of the red. And the circulation manager, Ted Hagnauer, handled the sale of the finished product.

The staff especially wishes to thank Mr. Derrickson for the photographs which he contributed to the ILIAD. We also appreciate the additional pictures supplied by Ken McKenna of the Press Club and other student photographers.

Special assistants Liz Green, Marcy Kahle, and Sherry Watkins helped in making this year's yearbook (in the words of our editor) "the biggest and best yet."

PRESS CLUB

When the school decided to expand its activities program in the last semester of the '64-'65 academic year, the antecedent and component groups of the Whitfield Press Club were the first to function. These student groups included THE WHITFIELDER, which had failed to publish at all during the preceding fall semester, and the Exhibition Committee.

The news magazine put out two issues in the spring semester of 1965 and one so far this year. The first exhibition of the committee, headed by Benton Duhme '67 was held at the 1965 spring picnic and consisted of back issues of both school publications and layout sheets of THE WHITFIELDER. Later shows included dust jackets of new library books, historical documents in facsimile reproduction, cartoons of literary subjects, and photographs of school activities.

J. Curtis Engler and Stocker Vosburgh, both '66, served as circulation co-managers and were succeeded by Henry Giese '67 as circulation manager and Judith Neun '69 as exchange editor.

The club as a whole was an unusually representative activity, including members of every class in school. They elected Benton president and Judith Neun vice-president. Jeff Lieberman served as WHITFIELDER editor for the first half of the year and Benton for the second half. Duhme is to edit the magazine next year. Jack Freiheit '68 headed the Press Correspondents' Club, which played news stories in daily and weekly newspapers, and Edward McKenna '67 guided the Camera Club, which offered photographs to school publications and to the Exhibition Committee. Members of all classes contributed by-line stories to THE WHITFIELDER, and the maintenance of a school scrapbook of press clippings was charged to three seventh-graders--Ruth Eisenbeis, Betsy Jackson, and Berrien Starr.

Mr. Howard Derrickson served as adviser to the club.

A breakfast was given in February honoring the students of the first and second quarters, and Miss Kaufman, the sponsor of the society.

THE TRAVELLER

The sky, a leaden grey ceiling, covers the earth. The trees are stark and denuded, having given their summer foliage and fall colors to the dormant season of winter, they stand there, lifting supplicating arms to the unseeing sky. The landscape is a blend of browns and greys, with the evergreens making occasional dark splashes against the neutral background.

A figure climbs the broken rail fence at the end of the pasture and stands resting beside it for a moment, then it strides across the meadow towards a grove of ancient trees near its center. As he nears the grove, the man takes off his hat as though entering a sacred place. The trees of the grove are huge old evergreens, bent and scraggly with age, yet proud and stiff, clustering around the remains of an ancient foundation, crumbling and broken, yet telling in its very size of the house which once stood there, proud and tall like the trees.

By this foundation the traveller stops, leaning on his staff, weary of the past and uncertain of the future, bent with age, yet ageless. A mocking bird flutters down, cocks his head, and looks at the stranger with a beady eye, then flutters away, and all is silent. Afternoon turns to evening and evening to frosty night, but still the traveler, weary with many miles, stands contemplating the ruins at his feet. He leans on his staff, silence and the mocking bird his only company, contemplating the history of this proud, now fallen house.

Finally as the moon is far overhead, shining through clear pale skies, the traveller turns to go. The mocking bird gives him a last piercing call, and is gone, leaving only the echoes of his blessing ringing in the ears of the traveler. But the traveller cannot stop to fathom the blessing of his fellow. He is striding across the moonlit meadow, with a determined gait and a light heart, for he has a long, long way to go.

She never gained other fame

SNOW

The day was dark and gray and cold.
The clouds had hidden the sun of gold.

The night was black, without a light,
But we hoped these clouds would not take flight.

When morning came we had a surprise;
The white snow glistened in our eyes.

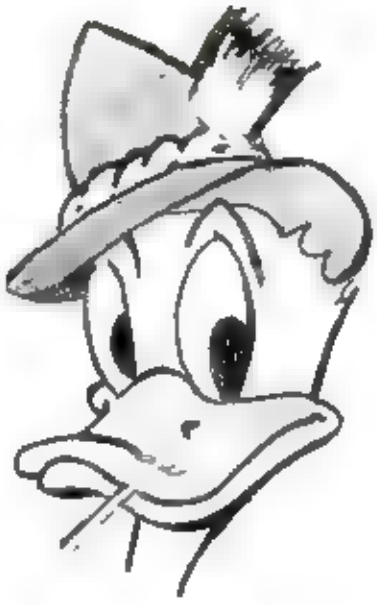

The snow was wet and soft and deep.
The snow was there to let us sleep.

We shoveled walks and threw snowballs;
We played and threw and took our falls.

Again night fell and all was clear.
In all our hearts there was a fear.

Tomorrow came, and with it school,
Our happiness brought to a teacher's rule.
